Garments without Guilt? Global Labour Justice and Ethical Codes in Sri Lankan Apparels

Cambridge University Press, January 2022

GWG uses a labour and feminist perspectives to explore how labour struggles in the post-1977 period in Sri Lanka provided important resistance to capitalist processes and continue to shape the industry both within and outside of the shop floor. It studies contextual moments to rupture the dominant narrative and record the centrality of labour in the success of the apparel industry.

THE POLITICAL ECONOMY OF PATRIARCHY IN THE GLOBAL SOUTH

Ece Kocabıçak

Ece Kocabıçak

The Political Economy of Patriarchy in the Global South

Routledge (Gender & Economics series), June 2022

This book investigates the impact of theoretical shortcomings upon feminist strategies by engaging with two clusters of work: ungendered accounts of capitalist development and theories on gendered oppression and inequality. Decentring feminist theorising grounded in histories and developments of the global North, it challenges assumptions and calls for rethinking major feminist categories.

Women in Turkey: Silent Consensus in the Age of Neoliberalism and Islamic Conservatism

Routledge, December 2020

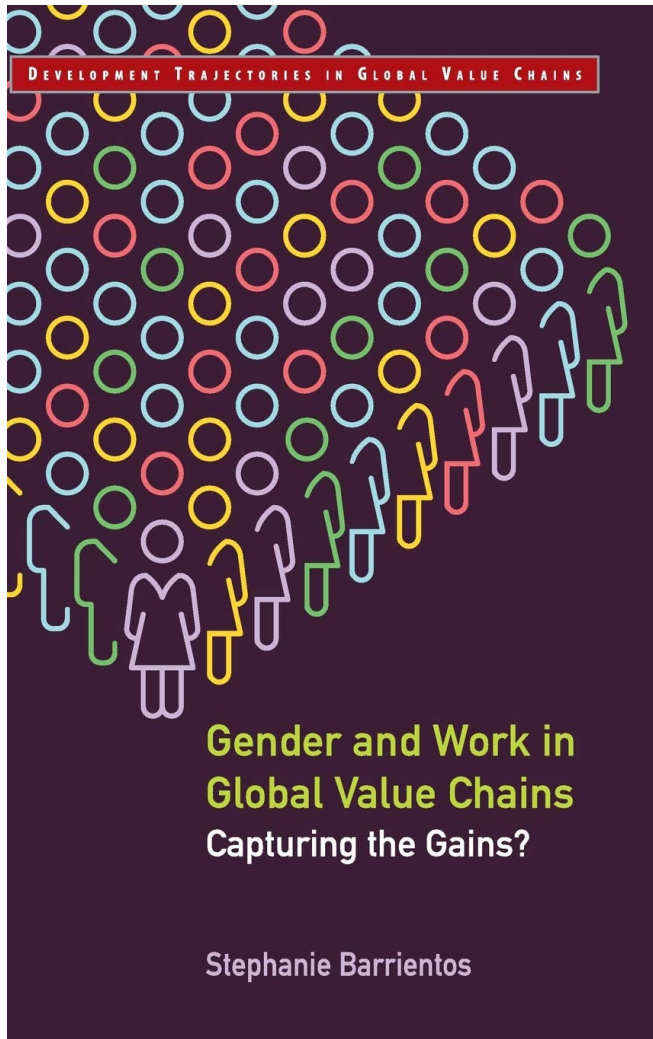

The Prize Committee found this winning book to be highly original in its treatment of the relationship between neoliberalism, religiously structured patriarchy, and gender in Turkey.

The authors trace the evolution of Islamist conservative thought, which had initially stood in contradiction to neoliberal policies and values, but has now evolved to incorporate neoliberal values, with deep negative impacts on education, employment and health inequality by gender.

Wealth and Homeownership: Women, Men and Families

Springer, October 2018

In almost every country, wealth is predominantly comprised by housing equity, but what are the possible risks and how does wealth accumulation vary across countries? In this timely book, by providing a conceptual framework to insert homeownership and housing decisions within an economic rationale, the authors analyze the complex relationship between gender, family types, wealth and homeownership.

Early Female Economists in Germany: A Search for Clues

Metropolis, December 2018

The scientific contributions of early female economists of Germany, as well as their roles in both public life and at universities, have so far received little attention. This book presents the lives and work of five economists who opened new paths in the discipline and thus paved the way for the next generation of female students and researchers.

L'économie Féministe

Presses de Sciences Po, November 2020

Economics has been built by men to be at the service of a society ruled by men. It is also the social science where the proportion of women is the lowest, with 25%. Prefaced by Thomas Piketty, this book unveils the apparent neutrality of some analytical frames. It sheds light on how feminism and economics can enrich one another.
